Harlan Ellison's Watching. Harlan Ellison's Watching (ISBN 0-88733-067-3) is a 1989 compilation of 25 years worth of essays and film reviews written by Harlan Ellison for Cinema magazine, the Los Angeles Free Press, Starlog magazine, and The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction among others. In the book, Ellison explains,... "Harlan Ellison's Watching" is a collection of opinion columns-cum-movie reviews, and the book, as a whole, is a rather intriguing jaunt through Ellison's career in 'watching' films (mostly for a living, writing opinions and editorials about the subject). "Harlan Ellison's Watching" is a collection of opinion columns-cum-movie reviews, and the book, as a whole, is a rather intriguing jaunt through Ellison's career in 'watching' films (mostly for a living, writing opinions and editorials about the subject). In "Watching" Ellison takes his critical and rhetorical skills to the movies. "Watching" covers a much broader span of time than "The Glass Teat". In the 1970's Harlan Ellison published "The Glass Teat" a compilation of his articles he published in the L.A. Free Press.
